Regional councils, also known as councils of governments and regional commissions, are public organizations comprised of local elected officials that promote collaboration among local governments, working across the jurisdictional silos of states, counties, and municipalities.

Plan transportation, environmental, and community development projects.

The Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Council of Governments serves the region above, which includes the three states, eight counties, and multiple municipalities surrounding Cincinnati, Ohio.

More than 500 regional councils in all 50 states serve areas with populations ranging from less than 50,000 to more than 19 million residents.

Convene elected officials and leaders from member communities to develop solutions to challenges extending beyond individual jurisdictions.

Plan transportation, environmental, and community development projects.

Deliver projects and programs by providing technical assistance and serving in roles such as Metropolitan Planning Organizations, Area Agencies on Aging, Economic Development Districts, 911 operators, and more.